'WHITE HOUSE PRESSURE' PUT ON FILMS

City Will Pause For Memorial Day Friday

Memorial Day will be widely observed Friday in the Circleville area.

City, county, state and federal offices, along with the library, state liquor store, and most stores, factories, shops and offices will remain closed all day.

Service at the postoffice will be curtailed, with no deliveries except special delivery letters, and the stamp, postal savings and registry windows will remain closed. The pickups of mail will be on holiday schedule.

WHILE MANY residents will spend most of the holiday in activities aimed as a tribute to the nation's war dead, many others will enjoy holiday motor trips, sports, and recreation.

An outstanding highlight of Memorial Day will be the parade from downtown Circleville to Forest cemetery.

The procession will form promptly at 9 a. m. at Memorial hall and will proceed on Court street to the cemetery. Led by a uniformed police escort the parade will comprise the colors and guard, rifle squad, the Circleville high school band, marching war veterans and auxiliaries, veterans in automobiles, members of other patriotic organizations in cars, and Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

OFFICERS of the day will be: Fred H. Boggs, American Legion commander; Virgil Timmons, Veterans of Foreign Wars commander; and Edward C. Hutchinson, Disabled American Veterans commander.

Parade marshals will be D. A. Yates, Ed Keys and Fred Donnelly. Larry Agin will captain the rifle squad. Buglers will be Billy Ebert and Clarence Willoughby.

The committee which will direct the decoration of veterans' graves is composed of Mack D. Parrett, chairman; Fred Boggs, E. C. Ebert, Fred Donnelly, James Fouch, Jack Chester and Jack Hatz. The public address system will be under supervision of Emanuel Hundley.

MEMORIAL services will be held at the soldiers' monument in Forest cemetery. Chief Carpenter's Mate R. B. Eddy, U. S. Navy, will be the speaker.

In event of rain the memorial services will be held in Memorial hall at 10 a. m.

Graves of war heroes in all of the cemeteries in the Circleville area are scheduled to be decorated Memorial Day and special services will be held in several cemeteries.

BUSINESS and industry will come to a virtual standstill throughout the district in memory of the fallen.

FRED NICHOLAS NAMED OFFICER OF OHIO LEAGUE

Fred R. Nicholas, Circleville, was elected vice president of the Building and Loan league of Ohio at the annual meeting which was held Tuesday afternoon at Chillicothe. Mr. Nicholas will serve in that capacity during the ensuing 12 months. He is identified with the Scioto Building and Loan Co., 113 1/2 South Court street.

Other officials of that company who also attended the Chillicothe meeting included John C. Goeller, E. W. Lutz, and Attorney Carl O. Leist.

BOY TELLS OF Speaker Urges Manager URGE TO 'WATCH FOR C OF C AT MEETING'

Recommendation that the Circleville Chamber of Commerce employ a full-time manager was made by R. Douglas Pinkerton, manager of the Chillicothe Chamber of Commerce, who was the principal speaker at a meeting held Tuesday night following a dinner in the Betz restaurant.

Thirty-two members of the Circleville organization were in attendance and it was decided to present the recommendation at a meeting of the board of directors set for next Tuesday noon in the Betz restaurant. Mr. Pinkerton gave an interesting talk relative to his managerial duties at Chillicothe.

John Magill, president of the Circleville group, presided at the meeting.

MR. PINKERTON told of the advantages to a community of an active and progressive Chamber of Commerce. He also went into some detail as to the working plan of his organization in Chillicothe and how they are instilling interest in civic affairs not only to Chamber of Commerce members but also to the general public.

Mr. Pinkerton brought out particularly the matter of what they in Chillicothe are calling the approaching "B" day—or "Buyers Day"—and what the merchants and business people there are planning to do about it.

He warned those present that times are changing fast from a "sellers" to a "buyers" market and that steps should be taken at once by all business people to re-appraise their relationship with the buying public and also their own personnel so as to be better able to cope with this coming new era.

DURING the discussion which followed Mr. Pinkerton's address the members decided that the Circleville Chamber of Commerce will send a delegation to the city council meeting next Tuesday night to request action in the Chamber of Commerce request for installation of water and sewer facilities in a veterans' homesite at the south edge of Circleville which is backed by the Chamber. Mack D. Parrett, representing the Chamber, asked the council at its May 20 meeting for free installation of water and sewer lines to serve the lots being sold to war veterans but council took no action. A majority of the council members indicated the city could not make such installation free of charge.

It was also decided to mail out within the next week or 10 days questionnaires to store patrons to determine the public's wishes regarding the opening and closing time for Circleville stores and whether the patrons desire the Wednesday afternoon closing to continue or perhaps be changed to Tuesday afternoon.

WASHINGTON, May 28 — Southern coal producers began separate bargaining conferences today with the United Mine Workers union looking toward a contract to replace the government-union agreement June 30.

Although contract talks between the UMW and northern and western mine owners have been under way for approximately two weeks, the southern producers declined to participate. They insisted upon a separate negotiating session.

UMW Vice President John O'Leary headed the miners delegation which opened discussions this morning with southern operators representing approximately 25 percent of the nation's annual bituminous coal output.

ESCAPEES STAGE CRIME SPREE; TWO CAPTURED

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28 — Three of six youthful convicts who escaped from the Ohio state reformatory Monday terrorized a number of Indiana residents and brought about a huge manhunt today.

Two of the refugees from the prison at Mansfield, O., were recaptured as police followed a trail of kidnappings and burglaries for which they were responsible.

Those recaptured are William Lucas, 16, Cincinnati, and Gailand Ericson, 20, Hamilton. The two and James Westlake, 19, Newark, left their three companions in northern Indiana and embarked upon a wild series of crimes in southeastern Indiana and in Indianapolis.

Westlake is believed to have been responsible for the kidnapping of Ernest Lanning, 40, near Nulltown, five miles south of Connersville, at two o'clock this morning.

The President's mother appeared to be well on the road to recovery today from the illness that nearly took her life.

UN-AMERICAN GROUP CHARGES REDS HELPED

House Committee Urges New Action To Get Facts On 'Dangerous Situation'

WASHINGTON, May 28 — The house un-American activities committee today approved a report charging that flagrant Communist propaganda films were produced in Hollywood "as a result of White House pressure."

The report was submitted by a subcommittee which recently completed an on-the-spot inquiry in Hollywood into allegations that many American films were packed with red propaganda.

THE REPORT asserted:

1. Scores of Communist screen writers have infiltrated into motion picture studios and that the screen writers guild is, "according to competent witnesses under the complete domination of the Communist party."

2. White House pressure was responsible for a number of the most violently pro-Communist films.

3. Communist screen writers, directors and producers have employed subtle techniques glorifying the Communist system and degrading the American system of government and American institutions.

4. That the national labor relations board has given great aid to the Communists in their efforts to infiltrate and control the motion picture industry.

5. That until recently, there has been no concerted effort on the part of studio heads to remove the Communists from the industry and that they have been permitted to gain influence and power during the last eight years.

6. At the present time, there is a rebellion within the industry on the part of a number of top actors, directors and producers, who are refusing to play, direct or produce pictures which were written by a well-known Communist or in which well-known Communist actors have been given a role.

7. That the Communists have succeeded in preventing production of certain American pictures which sought to glorify America and the American system.

The reference to the White House was made in the series of seven findings. The report merely said that the propaganda films were the result of "White House pressure." The report did not amplify this assertion nor did it specify during whose administration the "pressure" was exerted.

FEDERAL CURBS ON NEW HOMES LIFTED JUNE 1

WASHINGTON, May 28 — Housing Expediter Frank R. Crendon announced today that beginning June 1 federal permits no longer will be required for persons wishing to build homes for themselves or for veterans.

On the same date, the limit on the number of bathroom fixtures to be installed in a new house will be removed and the 1,500 square foot limitation on homes will be expanded to 2,000 square feet.

Crendon said that persons who already have obtained federal permits may adopt the more liberal provisions.

The expediter emphasized, however, that remaining controls will be continued "until conditions permit further relaxation or unless congress directs their removal before then."

Crendon explained that the permit system is being discontinued in order to "simplify the few remaining restrictions."

'100 MILLION CROP LOSS IN OHIO FORECAST

Rain Prevents Farmers From Planting; More Showers Predicted Here

By International News Service Ohio was threatened today with severe crop losses as the result of the wettest three-month Spring period in the history of the state.

With an estimated 100 million dollars' worth of crops gone by the board so far, further losses were anticipated as the weather failed to show a trend toward a dry cycle.

Rain fell over most of the state again yesterday and more showers were predicted through tonight and tomorrow. Since early Spring, forecasters said, the rain has been falling at such close intervals that much farm land has been unable to dry sufficiently for plowing and planting.

OHIO'S CROP loss estimate was made yesterday at a meeting of state extension heads and county farm agents at Wooster.

R. E. Yoder, agronomist at the Wooster experimental station, and Earl Jones, agronomist at Ohio State University, summed up the dire situation.

They estimated that already

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kierman

The Soviet radio is to accept advertising. Up until now when a Moscow announcer praised L. S. MFT he meant Lenin, Stalin, Molotov, Fedorenko, Timoshenko.

But soon the Soviet air will be filled with sponsored programs like "It pays to be ardent," "Can you stop this?" and "We, the politburo!"

The sponsored quiz will be popular—the Soviet variation of "take it, or leave it" will be "take it!" And "information please" will come out "in formation please!"

On the thrill side there will be programs like "this is your ogpu" and "the court of missing pairs" direct from Siberia.

No time will be sold for political broadcasts. As in the past, all political parties will be given free time on the air whenever it wants it.

But I still can't figure a huckster in an astrakhan hat or how you can Hooper-rate a program no one would dare admit he missed.

Strip Mine Bill Boost To Herbert

COLUMBUS, O., May 28—Governor Herbert's legislative stock went up today with passage by the house of a bill to expedite strip mining of coal.

The bill appeared a dead issue until Herbert got behind it last week. Until then it was not even sure of committee recommendation. But it was passed by the house yesterday by a smashing 88-34 vote.

Lending further prestige to Herbert's legislative victory was the report that Congressman-at-Large George Bender had urged the 18 Cleveland members to vote against the bill.

But the Cleveland delegation had dinner with Herbert the night before last—and only two of the 18 cast ballots against the bill.

The bill was termed "fair and temperate" by its principal author, Rep. Ray White (D-Holmes), who said it was patterned both after the Pennsylvania law and the findings of the Ohio strip mine study commission.

THREATS MADE AS BROTHERS DIG MOTHER'S GRAVE

CLEVELAND, May 28—Union and Lake View cemetery officials decried today the threats made by a picket as three brothers, one a minister, buried their mother yesterday in a grave they dug themselves.

Martin E. Vanderwerf, representative of the AFL-Arborists and Landscapers union, termed the picket interference "one of those things you wish hadn't happened."

According to an affidavit sworn by Dr. Laurence Blackburn, 49, pastor of St. Anne's Episcopal church in Lowell, Mass., one of the striking unionists came up to the grave site while the burial was in progress and threatened that "you're liable not to get out of here if you go on with this."

Dr. Blackburn was accompanied by his brothers, Wallace M. Blackburn, 36, Detroit, and Harold Blackburn, 42, Framingham, Mass. They had received permission from Lake View officials to dig a grave to bury their mother, Mrs. Ora Estella Blackburn, 72, of suburban Berea.

Cemetery officials reported that the incident was "very exceptional and that probably no similar situations will occur" before the strike is settled. The union is seeking a 10-cents hourly wage increase. The cemetery has offered four cents.

Bodies have been placed in a crypt at the cemetery during the six-week-old strike. A total of 118 caskets already has piled up in the vault, the cemetery reported.

FARM FUND CUT EXPECTED TO BE MUCH SMALLER

Amendments Restoring Some Of Slashes Up As House Pushes Action On Bill

WASHINGTON, May 28—Rep. Hope (R) Kans., chairman of the house agriculture committee, predicted today that the Republican economy program will be overridden and some of the funds slashed from the agricultural appropriations bill for 1948 will be restored.

Hope revealed he will offer a compromise to restore part of the agricultural adjustment act funds which an economy-minded appropriations committee eliminated.

The Republican leader said he would first offer an amendment covering the entire 148 million dollars. If that is defeated, he added, he will offer a compromise proposal to restore part of the funds. Indications were that the compromise might be forty-eight million.

THE HOUSE CONVENED AT 9 A. M. EST, TWO HOURS EARLIER THAN USUAL, IN AN EFFORT TO COMPLETE ACTION BY NIGHTFALL ON THE $805, 143,576 AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT BILL FOR THE NEW FISCAL YEAR BEGINNING JULY 1. THE APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE CUT $383,427,742 FROM THE $1,188,571,318 REQUESTED BY THE ADMINISTRATION.

MARSHALL TELLS OF CUTBACK IN 8-INCH SHELLS

WASHINGTON, May 28 — Secretary of State Marshall testified today that the Army's need for eight-inch shells was being heavily reduced in 1945, just about the time Ex-Rep. May (D) Ky., fought against a cutback in a shell contract held by war contractors Henry and Murray Garrison.

The secretary, Army chief of staff during the war, appeared as a defense witness at the May-Garrison conspiracy trial.

The question about eight-inch shell needs was put by Prosecutor William A. Paisley, in an attempt to discredit May's testimony that he protested the cutback because Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, allied commander, had called for more shells.

Several war department officials testified that May protested the contract cutback in May, 1945.

held, later said that the reference to White House "pressure" referred to efforts to have Jack Warner of Warner brothers make "Mission to Moscow" and the testimony of Robert Taylor that his Navy enlistment was postponed in order to make "Song of Russia".

The committee member said that pressure on Taylor was exerted by Lowell Mellett, one-time administrative assistant to President Roosevelt.

Meantime, Rep. Thomas (R) N. J., committee chairman, said that 30 subpoenas will be issued on the west coast to unidentified witnesses to insure their presence at public hearings in Washington on Communism in Hollywood.

Thomas said he has sent instructions to Rep. Nixon (R) Calif., who is now on the coast, to confer with the U. S. district attorney concerning issuance of the subpoenas.

THE FULL COMMITTEE APPROVED THREE SUBCOMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS.

They are:

1. That the investigation of Communism in Hollywood be intensified and that a public hearing be held "at the earliest possible date" to give the American people the full facts and information on this dangerous situation.

2. That the Communist actors, writers, directors and producers be subpoenaed to appear in Washington and be confronted in public sessions with testimony and evidence against them.

3. That an investigation be instituted to determine the responsibility and extent of the influence and interference on the part of government agencies or officials in the production of "flagrant Communist propaganda films."

The report said that the subcommittee was furnished with a complete list of all the pictures which have been produced in Hollywood in the last eight years which contained Communist propaganda.

In conclusion, the report said: "In the opinion of the subcommittee, there is no question as to the serious inroads that the Communists have made in the motion picture industry, and it presents a problem which can only be corrected by complete exposure on the part of the committee... and prompt action by the studio heads."

RUSSIA HAVING TROUBLE WITH FIVE YEAR PLAN

More Than Half Of Ministries Behind Schedule In Recovery Program

International News Service,
NEW YORK, May 28 — Russia today is having a difficult time trying to maintain the schedule of the current five-year plan, the greatest reconstruction program in the nation's history.

Sixteen out of thirty government ministries were behind schedule during the first quarter of this year according to what little information on the plan is available to foreign observers in Moscow.

Indications are that the plan has fallen behind schedule in respect to machine tools, agricultural machinery, transportation, housing and some branches of consumer goods.

On the other hand, it is believed to be up to or slightly ahead of schedule in respect to coal, steel and pig iron.

Soviet agricultural plans call for the planting of an additional 22½ million acres of land this year. Most of this new planting will be devoted to grain, which is to be increased by 15,600,000 acres. It is also planned to increase the grain acreage by another fifteen million acres in 1948.

PRIORITY objectives of the current five-year plan are officially stated to be as follows:

1—Soviet economy must be reconstructed entirely with chief emphasis on railway transportation and industry;

2—The level of overall industrial production in 1950 must exceed that of 1940 by 50 per cent.

3—The material welfare of the Soviet people must be advanced and by 1950 there must be an "abundance of the basic objects of consumption";

4—Soviet science must catch up with and surpass achievements of science abroad;

5—The tempo of investment in

RIDER WARNS VACATIONERS TO PRACTICE CARE

Conservation Commissioner Says Ohio Lakes Can Be Dangerous

Conservation Commissioner H. A. Rider today issued his annual warning to those who are looking forward to Summer vacations and week end outings on the waters of lakes and streams. "Water in drinking glass, a bathtub or a picturesque brook, is indeed a harmless thing," Rider explains, "but when millions of gallons get together in a river or lake it becomes a challenge to all safety precautions and common sense."

"Most of our Ohio lakes," Rider said, "are used by thousands of vacation loving people annually because they are fairly well scattered over the state at a convenient distance from almost anywhere and they're popular too because they are outstandingly picturesque and usually sprinkled with islands. But there is one disadvantage and that is that they, like most inland bodies of water, are shallow and shallow lakes get rough in a very few minutes with the slightest rising of the wind."

THE PERCENTAGE of casualties from boating is rather small considering the total number of people using the water for boating but is large when we consider that water accidents are avoidable through the application of common sense. Too many people throw all caution and care to the four winds while engaged in the seemingly harmless water sports and thereby bring misery and grief upon their families and friends through carelessness.

A few simple rules are: 1. Don't overload rowboats; the average load for almost all such boats is four people. 2. Provide a life preserver for each passenger; a slightly inflated inner tube is an excellent life saver. 3. Head for the shore or nearest island if sky indicates rain or wind. 4. If a passenger tumbles overboard, mark the spot immediately by ramming a fishing pole or boat oar into the lake bottom and then toss out boat anchor to stop boat. 5. Leave the bottles on shore; it is said that 90 per cent of the drownings are caused by carelessness resulting from drinking.

Vacations and fishing trips are fun but can be enjoyed most by those who use precautions against possible disaster, Rider stated.

BABY BOY, 1, WITNESS FOR COLORED OLEO

COLUMBUS, O., May 28 — A year-old boy, dressed in butterfly rompers, stole the show in support of a senate-approved bill to legalize the manufacture and sale of colored oleo-margarine in Ohio.

The star witness was Steve South, Columbus, who was presented to the house committee on organization of state government by Mrs. George South, his mother.

"This," Mrs. South said dramatically as she plunked Steve on the conference table, "is the reason I don't have time to color margarine."

Steve was a good advertisement for oleo's nutritional properties, it appeared, and he seemed to take his testimonial duties seriously.

He waved gravely to Committee Chairman George Kirkpatrick (R-Knox) at the other end of the table, blinked somewhat irritably at flashing camera bulbs, then added his own testimonial.

"Wuh, wuh," he solemnly said.

NATIONAL FORESTS HELP
NEW YORK — The National Forests include 73 million acres capable of growing commercial timber crops, says the annual report of the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. They contain one-third of the national saw-timber stand. They are being managed for continuous timber production. In recent years they have supplied about 10 per cent of the nation's yearly lumber cut. With careful management of their timber resources, the National Forests can help cushion the shock of private timber exhaustion in many areas, and save many mill operations from shut-down. Eventually their total sustained-yield output of timber can be more than double, says the report.

OLD TUNNEL IN CITY STIRS UP AGED LEGENDS

Mrs. Howard Moore Denies Any Knowledge Of Use Of Home For Slaves

Whether the old Moore home located at 304 South Court street was used 90 years ago as a "station" on a secret underground route through which runaway Negro slaves were surreptitiously whisked to freedom was a moot question Wednesday.

What appears to be the opening of a very old tunnel in the basement of the Moore home—stead which is now believed to be more than 125 years old. The house has been occupied by five generations of the Moore family.

The present occupant is Mrs. Lillian Moore, widow of Howard B. Moore who died 21 years ago.

"I have no way of knowing just what this supposed tunnel may have been used for," Mrs. Moore said. "I know that the basement hole seems to be a tunnel opening, and I know that my husband spoke of the tunnel, but I also know that he never mentioned of knowing that it ever was used as a slave passage."

MORE THAN 10 years ago an article appeared in a Cincinnati newspaper concerning the presumed tunnel, and a similar article appeared in Monday's issue of a Columbus paper, Mrs. Moore said, and after each such publication she received many telephone and personal calls by curious persons seeking more information.

"I just don't know any more about it," she asserted.

It is a matter of authenticated history, of course, that a network of underground tunnels was made use of during the hey-day of abolition preceding the Civil War to aid Negro slaves who fled northward from southern slave states.

But there appeared to be not one iota of evidence Wednesday that the supposed tunnel entering into the basement of the old Moore home was one of the "stations".

LEGEND IN Circleville says that a tunnel extends from the Moore home a distance of several blocks to the east edge of town and ends at Mound and Clinton streets near where a grocery store now stands.

But this is only legend despite the fact that Mrs. Moore said she remembered that when the Lutheran church was erected on Mound street a short distance east of the Moore home the men who dug the church foundation discovered what appeared to be a brick-walled tunnel running eastward.

City Councilman William M. Reid, who prides himself on being a Circleville and Pickaway county historian, declared flatly that the idea of the Moore home having long ago been a "station" on the slave underground railway is "pure hush."

Reid—who celebrated his 79th birthday on Monday—said that many years ago there was a swamp known as "Lake Darling" in the area of the location of the Moore home at the southeast corner of South Court and Mound streets.

MANY YEARS ago, Reid said, a large tunnel was constructed, mostly of heavy stone blocks, to serve as a drainage sewer for the swamp and "Lake Darling".

He said that drainage artery extended eastward, then veered northward, and emptied into Hargus creek at the Lancaster pike. He further asserted that at one time he owned property very near to the Moore home and that the aperture in the basement of the Moore home, now presumed to be a tunnel opening, was really used years ago as a "coal dump".

"Although legend has it that this house was erected in 1810 by William Moore, my husband's grandfather," declared Mrs. Moore, "I do not know whether that is correct." She said her husband's forefathers came to Ohio from the southern states. She added that she knew of none who were abolitionists.

As to the report that Colonel Samuel Ashbury Moore, born in the house the same year it was built, in later years becoming an "ardent abolitionist," Mrs.

LOST CHILDREN

ONE OF the most human things about little boys and girls is their tendency to wander away from home when spring comes, thereby often getting lost and causing their parents and friends much needless trouble. An observer suggests what may be at least a partial remedy. He finds some kind of attractive adornment which the other youngsters haven't got, and which they are therefore proud to wear, and pins it on so conspicuously that it isn't likely to come off. Thus the child is more easily traced and identified.

Less conspicuous but quite useful is a tag with name and address fastened on the back of the clothing where it cannot easily be dislodged. Teaching the small fry to state their name, father's name and address, when asked, is also a good idea.

Most important of all is to teach them that the policeman is their friend.

NATIONAL SURPLUS WEEK

QUIT HOLDING goods for high profits, or even low profits. Let everyone get together in a goods-moving National Surplus Week. So urges the Robert B. Cady Co., a New York advertising firm, in an advertisement "published as a public service." This asks manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers to inventory all undesirable, discontinued or over-priced stock on hand, cut to its true value, whether that be 2 per cent less or 90 per cent, and put it on sale for a week. If anything remains unsold, give it to charity. Then start afresh with the manufacture of new goods.

This sweeping proposal captures the imagination. While there will always be some to hang back, those who try it might find that their loss was less than they had expected, and that they had gained in public good will.

EARLIEST PRINTED BOOK

THE DISCOVERY of a book printed before Johann Gutenberg's famous Bible, the earliest known printed book, is announced by Tass, the official Russian news agency. This would be exciting, but unfortunately is not true. The Tass story is of the finding of a leaf of another Bible, with 36 lines to a page, while the better-known Bible has 42. This is no new discovery. Copies of the 36-line Bible are already known, and can be dated as having been printed in 1460. The 42-line Bible was printed somewhere between 1450 and 1456.

Evidently this statement is no more reliable than a good many others issued by Tass. Still, even if the 36-line Bible is the second printed book and not the first, it is rare enough to give the finder of any new specimen real cause for pride.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 28—You may have noticed in the news that the steam went out of the George-Byrd-Democratic move to put off the Republican tax reduction. The enthusiasm behind delay rather mysteriously eased down. Even Senator George, author of the proposed delay, conceded to a reporter in advance of the vote that he expected to be defeated.

This may seem strange to you because the Democrats had their best issue of the season on this matter. For the first time they had the Democratic party together in one fold, the George and Byrds aligned with Mr. Truman and his treasury secretary. They could not muster that thorough unanimity even on the tax reduction proposal itself. Furthermore the Democrats had a good argument. They wanted delay until they could see how much the Republicans cut the Truman budget, claiming there should be no tax reduction until the figures on economies show justification.

The inside explanation of how the steam went down I hear is this:

Mr. Snyder and the treasury crowd got up some advance figures on expectations of June 15 income tax receipts. They thought such a survey would show a decline and put the Republicans in a deeper hole. They reasoned that if they, the Democrats, could keep the tax reduction bill a way from the White House until the second quarter tax receipts were announced, Mr. Truman could justify a veto.

Unfortunately their survey showed the opposite. The treasury actuaries are supposed to have found receipts will not only be unexpectedly up, but up beyond their latest budget estimates, thus affording more opportunity than was expected for tax reduction and debt retirement.

Certain top Republicans in congress found out about these figures and changed their strategy. It seems Messrs. Knudsen and Tabor, the house Republican fiscal directors, decided not to attempt to go through with their plan to hold the tax bill in conference after it passes the senate. You read of their plan in this spot last week. They thought that if they held the bill in conference after it passes the senate until the fiscal year closes June 30, the treasury figures would show full justification for their reduction bill, even though they had been unable to economize as much as they expected. Senator Taft was supposed to be willing.

But treasury estimators can get a fairly trustworthy line on such figures in advance. They know the state of business and individuals and can reckon at this late date (only about three weeks in advance of the second quarter payments and five weeks before the end of the fiscal year) fairly thoroughly as to what to expect.

When the Republicans heard about these figures as I say, they changed position. Taft decided to press for immediate action despite his loss of Byrd and George and the so-called conservative Democrats. They could see there was no need to wait. They might just as well push the thing right up to Mr. Truman any old time at their convenience.

DIET AND HEALTH

Limiting Weight Gains Helps Avoid Toxemia of Pregnancy

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PERHAPS the greatest danger to the expectant mother is the possibility that she will develop a condition known as the toxemia of pregnancy. In this disorder there is a marked increase in blood pressure; body tissues become waterlogged and swollen; there are vomiting, prostration and, sometimes convulsions, coma and death. Doctors are always on guard against the condition, but in the past, unfortunately, they have not always been able to prevent its developing. We do not know its exact cause, but during recent years research has led to a belief that lack of proteins in the diet may have something to do with it.

Preventing Toxemia

More recently still, Dr. Ralph Luikart of Creighton University has done much to show ways in which toxemia may be prevented in the vast majority of cases if not entirely eliminated in all. His plan consisted chiefly in regulation of the diet so that each expectant mother under his care ate during her pregnancy relatively large amounts of protein while cutting down drastically on starches, sweets and other foods of high caloric content.

Limited Total Increase

In this way he limited the total increase in weight during pregnancy to 16 pounds, with the maximum gain in any month held to two pounds. All patients were held to this rule and each was impressed with the fact that the scale and not her appetite determined how much she should eat.

This, of course, meant careful planning of the diet. In addition, attention was given to good general hygiene including regularity of the bowels, ample rest and suitable exercise.

An effort also was made to be sure that the patient consumed enough proteins from such foods as meat and milk. Meat or fish was eaten once a day, and liver twice a week in those cases where there was no reason to limit its use. One or two eggs were included daily as well as two servings of cooked green vegetables. They had one of the citrus fruits or tomato juice for breakfast to provide vitamin C, and one serving of cooked fruit or canned fruit without heavy syrup later in the day.

Successful Weight Control

Successful weight control during pregnancy depends on the treatment during the first seven months. If the weight gain is not properly controlled during that time, a sudden large weight gain is likely to occur during the last two months, due to the retention of fluids in the tissues. If a patient gains more than a pound in two weeks, there should be a reduction not in the proteins and cooked vegetables, but in the amounts of such foods as ice cream, candy, pastries, cereals and potatoes.

One thousand women who followed this weight control program throughout their pregnancy, remained well and not one case of toxemia of pregnancy developed. This it would seem that a diet of this type does have value in preventing this serious disorder of pregnancy, the extra safety it gives being well worth the extra effort of both doctor and patient.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

RUFUS returned Diane's smile. "Seen Page lately?"

"Not for several days. I called her today—Rufus!" Suddenly she was aware of something different in his manner. "Rufus, you're going to tell me—"

"If she hasn't. Page and I are going to be married sometime," he added.

Diane put out both her hands to his. "Grand, Rufus! Oh, I am very glad! I can take some of the credit for it, can't I? You met her at my wedding!"

Rufus laughed. "Yes, the credit's yours. For more reason than Diane knew, perhaps." "I'm not surprised," Diane continued. "Page said something one day—"

But Rufus looked surprised. "She did?"

"The way girls talk together! She said she was thinking of it!" She saw his face cloud a little.

"She's had to think it pretty well out. It wasn't love at first sight with her. And she still has a fight ahead of her."

"You mean with her family?" Rufus nodded. "It's postponed till after a trip they're taking. I was all for walking in on them and giving them the facts, but Page wants to handle it and she thought it was a little cruel to spoil their plans for this jaunt."

Diane wondered swiftly if he were thinking what she was. That Page was putting it off because she did not have the courage to face it out. Plans for a motor trip were not so very important!

"It isn't." She was going to say, "their affair." But she did not finish, realizing how empty the denial was. She wrinkled her brow, considering. She liked him so much that she hated having anyone look down on him! "Rufus, maybe if you told Page what you told me that day, told her family—"

"Their drinks had come. Rufus took a full swallow of his, smiled over his glass. But his smile had no amusement in it.

"I'd be more acceptable as a son-in-law? At the cost of such compromise with myself, the position would be too dearly won." The shake of his head was almost angry.

Diane remembered her anger when she had looked over the gathering at Mrs. Arden's table and seen them so entrenched behind their superiority of family. "I'm certain, now, that Bill's family had to take an awful gulp to swallow me! And Dad and Paula. Dad's money didn't make any difference. Really, they don't think of money! And that's all I had back of me. I didn't see it that way at the time; if I had I'd have laughed at it. I'd have said it didn't make a darn bit of difference, not even if I were a Hindu girl—or like Tony, wasn't it, who 'just grewed'?"

"I wanted me and I wanted him."

RUFUS, IT SHOULD BE THAT WAY!

By a slight lift of his shoulders Rufus deprecated the fact that it wasn't.

"I thought," Diane went on, her fingers tracing the pattern in the paper dolly before her, "that what Bill and I were to each other would have nothing to do with anyone, outside. With Bill's family, or mine. That it would be just our two selves. Oh, no one interferes, it isn't that! But it's between us, something you can't give a name—Why, sometimes I feel as much married to that first Judge William Arden hanging in our living room as I am to Bill!"

To all of them, since his day! She lifted eyes bright with defiance, finished, furiously. "What if I never find the real Bill, for all of them?"

Now it was Rufus who put his hand out to cover hers. "You will, if you stick to it. I think you've the fight in you, take it!"

Diane squeezed his hand before she drew hers away. "Rufus, you always say just the word I need to hear! And when I need to hear it! I was ready to—compromise! Now I won't!"

"Don't, and command me at any time," Rufus answered, lifting his glass to her.

She lifted her own. "Pledged in coca cola!" Then she exclaimed: "Rufus! You said five minutes!"

He looked at his wrist, affected horror. "That's what happens when you let a blonde get you in tow."

"And we've been talking of me and more affairs, instead of you and Page!"

"There isn't anything more to say of that than I've told you," Rufus answered brusquely.

"Indeed there is," Diane asserted, the warmth in her voice partly her very real indignation at Page. "I can tell you I hope you're awfully happy!"

"Thanks," Rufus said. He put a coin on the check, got to his feet, a little abruptly. "Come along, my ally, before I lose my job."

His hand under Diane's arm, he steered her before him through the maze of little tables.

"Diane!"

It was Mrs. Arden, Senior. All-thea Matthews sat with her at a table in Diane's and Rufus' path. "Oh, hello!" Diane returned.

"Have you met Rufus Kent?" Making it sound a privilege, for Rufus, needless, his shirtleeves wrinkled where he'd rolled them up and down, his hair roughened, would not impress them favorably.

"I've heard Bill speak often of you, Mr. Kent," Mrs. Arden said, cordially. In an equally pleasant manner All-thea Matthews acknowledged the introduction. But Diane saw the withdrawing in their eyes.

She said hastily: "I didn't know you were sitting here. When did you come in?"

Mrs. Arden answered first. "We tried to catch your eye."

STARSSAY—

For Wednesday, May 28

A DAY of rather critical and conflicting situations is seen from major planetary configurations. There is definite promise of a combination of influential interest, brilliant ideas and bold adventures, with a coalition of forces, resources, plans and objectives, but false moves, half-baked ideas or tactics, blunders or trickiness might jeopardize all fair prospects. Erratic or impulsive moves may complicate and provoke anger and negative results. Give pause for reason and good judgment.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, while on the eve of a year of much activity and strenuous performance, in which the undivided support of those in high places whose funds, ideas and general resources are needed for sound development, might be swayed from such collaboration by undevelopment, or impractical ideas or plans, even by misrepresentation or show of trickiness or deception.

Strange predicaments or character involvements, erratic or emotional impulses, might antagonize or forfeit influential interests. Rationalizing and intelligent management might turn the tide to conspicuous success. Principle, restraints and poise may avert injury and loss.

A child born on this day while possessed of constructive ideas with promising ingenuity and skill, also has erratic and strange urges, impulsive and emotional, to negative its major plans and objectives.

"The Authority on Authorities"

NEITHER SHOULD GET IT

WHEN THE cards are so distributed that both sides can make game in their best suit, neither side should do it. If that sounds paradoxical, just consider the value of sacrifice bids to cut down your losses. If you have bid to a game you can make, and the opponents then overcall with a game contract which they can make, are you going to let them get away with it? Wouldn't you rather go one level higher than your maximum safe contract and be set one? That will cost you less than their game would.

South took out his partner's business double of the 4-Spades because he felt he had misled North somewhat with his first bid of 1-No Trump and his free raise to 3-Hearts over the 2-Spades while holding no defensive strength outside of North's red bid hearts except the diamond K. Before doing it, he reflected on the fact that the opponents had shown a fine spade fit, that he had three himself and that therefore North was bound to be short in the suit, with surely no more than a singleton, if that. Hence, there might be a play for game, and in any event the 5-Hearts probably could not be punished badly.

It proved that South did the best thing for his side. The opponents could have made their 4-Spades, with the loss of just one trick in hearts and two in diamonds, and not even these tricks could have been taken unless they were raked in before the lead was lost to East, as he could discard any losers in his hand by establishing clubs through a single ruff.

The 5-Hearts contract was set one trick, as the defenders took one in spades and two in clubs. That cost North-South 200 points, but it was better than having the opponents make a game against them. In brief, either side could make game, and hence neither should.

NEW YORK—Evening comes to New York in so many ways. It comes wearily, tiredly to the suburbanite, and we see him stomping patiently into Grand Central station, evening paper under his arm and one eye on the terminal clock. It comes coolly and refreshingly to the society post-deb, who has been up perhaps two hours with an icepack on her head. It comes romantically and melodramatically to the artist, who lights his candles in bottles and opens his window to let the night noises of the city rush into his soul.

It comes frighteningly to the lonely ones. I sat last night in a little ham and egg joint in Lexington ave. and watched them. This is one of those places where there is a guy in a white dress shirt and tie, who is a guy in a white dress shirt and tie, who is a guy in a white dress shirt and tie.

It comes frighteningly to the lonely ones. I sat last night in a little ham and egg joint in Lexington ave. and watched them. This is one of those places where there is a guy in a white dress shirt and tie, who is a guy in a white dress shirt and tie, who is a guy in a white dress shirt and tie.

IT WAS 8 O'CLOCK—that terrible, empty-pit-of-the-stomach hour for the lonely ones, when the night stretches blankly before them. So there they stood in front of the ham and egg joint, warming themselves for a moment before the companionship of the handsome egg-fryer, like cold and pinched-face children before a log fire.

There was a gray-haired woman in a silver fox jacket; both had seen better days. A tall, sallow-faced man without a hat was there. He had newspaper under his arm, and as you looked you saw that most of them had newspapers under their arms.

A counterboy skidded merrily down the aisle and yelled for "One in!" Then he looked out the window at the 15 lost sheep, and he grinned at the egg-fryer.

"Interesting-looking audience you have there, Foster," he muttered. "What've you got that holds them so spellbound?" The egg-fryer never looked up from the swift completion of his rounds. "Never see them," he said. "Don't know what they look like. Too busy."

However, they see him and they know what he looks like. He is dark and good-looking and deft and he is out on the stage for a gaudy moment, performing his act just as if he were the three tumbling Terries on the old Palace stage.

Most of all, he is busy; he has something to do. He knows what he is going to do from one minute to the next and his nights are never empty. His task is to crack eggs and fry them, and he does it, precisely and surely and neatly.

THE LOST SHEEP have no such task. They watch for a few moments, and then as suddenly as they have come, they are gone. They are walking uncertainly up or down Lexington ave.

It is a nice night. What about a walk up Park ave.? The bars and grills seem warm and cheery. Just exactly what should be done, now? You can't go to bed yet, it's too early. They turn to ask their companions, but there are no companions, and they go on up the avenue alone.

A half-hour later, over in the Forties, we see another lonely one, who has sputtered in the night like a Roman candle and whose moment of glory is done. He is a drunk in a blue suit, the seat of the trousers dusty, and his gray fedora sits on the back of his head as two cops hustle him along the street.

The fight is gone from him and his head lolls back and his eyes are closed as his feet slip and shuffle along the sidewalk. Tomorrow, the morning will stretch gray and empty and painfully before him, but for now he has filled his soul with firewater and for a few fleeting seconds he has defied mortal man to conquer his unconquerable soul.

Drake's Produce Beaten By One Big Inning In Night League Contest

Mumaw's Market scored a Night Softball league victory over Drake's Produce Tuesday night at Ted Lewis park despite threat of rain.

The winners scored all their runs in one inning and held on to take a 6-5 triumph. In the second inning Mumaw's jumped on Bill Hobbie and Joe Drake for six runs.

BLUES HOLD ON TO LEAD; BIRDS WIN AND GAIN

By International News Service
Kansas City Blues continued to hold their own today in what is rapidly coming to be known as the American Association shuffle.

The New York Yankee farmhands, emulating the shutout propensities of their elders, clipped the St. Paul Apostles last night, 4 to 0, and dumped the Saints unceremoniously into the cellar with their twin city neighbor, Minneapolis.

The hot fight for second place between the Toledo Mud Hens and the defending champion Louisville Colonels saw the Mud Hens take a temporary advantage again today following their 6-to-5 defeat of Indianapolis.

Louisville, meanwhile, slipped back into third as the Columbus Red Birds set them down, 7 to 2, and climbed from seventh to sixth. Al Patterson tossed a seven-hitter as the Colonels as his mates capitalized on four Louisville errors and battered two pitchers for nine safeties.

In the other game last night, Marv Grissom scattered nine hits to keep Minneapolis from being the sole possessor of last place in the league standings. The Millers garnered only seven base hits, but their two two-run innings were enough to outscore Milwaukee, 4 to 3.

TREATY TO WAIT

WASHINGTON, May 28 — Far eastern experts today foresaw no possibility of the calling of a conference to draft the Japanese peace treaty before late Fall or early Winter.

WAGE BOARDS IN OHIO TO BECOME ACTIVE AGAIN

Hotel And Restaurant Group Named By Industrial Relations Chief

COLUMBUS, O., May 28—The long dormant state minimum wage boards are expected to start functioning again within the next six weeks.

William J. Rogers, state industrial relations director, said today that the first board—covering the hotel and restaurant industry—lacked only two members. He stated that the complement of nine members should be filled by early July and that their report would be submitted to him within 60 days after their first meeting.

ROGERS NAMED the members who had already accepted the appointments. He noted that they were representatives of management, labor and the public.

They are D. M. Myers, general manager of the Hotel Alms in Cincinnati; George Geyer, of Geyer's restaurant, Xenia; Frank Wells, of Wells-Rexall drug store, Wooster; Jack A. Breidenbach of the Ohio Federation of Labor, Dayton; Lawrence N. Steinberg of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, Toledo, and Joseph H. Traylor of the Hotel Hollenden, Cleveland. The only public representative who has accepted is Alma Herbst, professor of economics at Ohio State University's school of commerce.

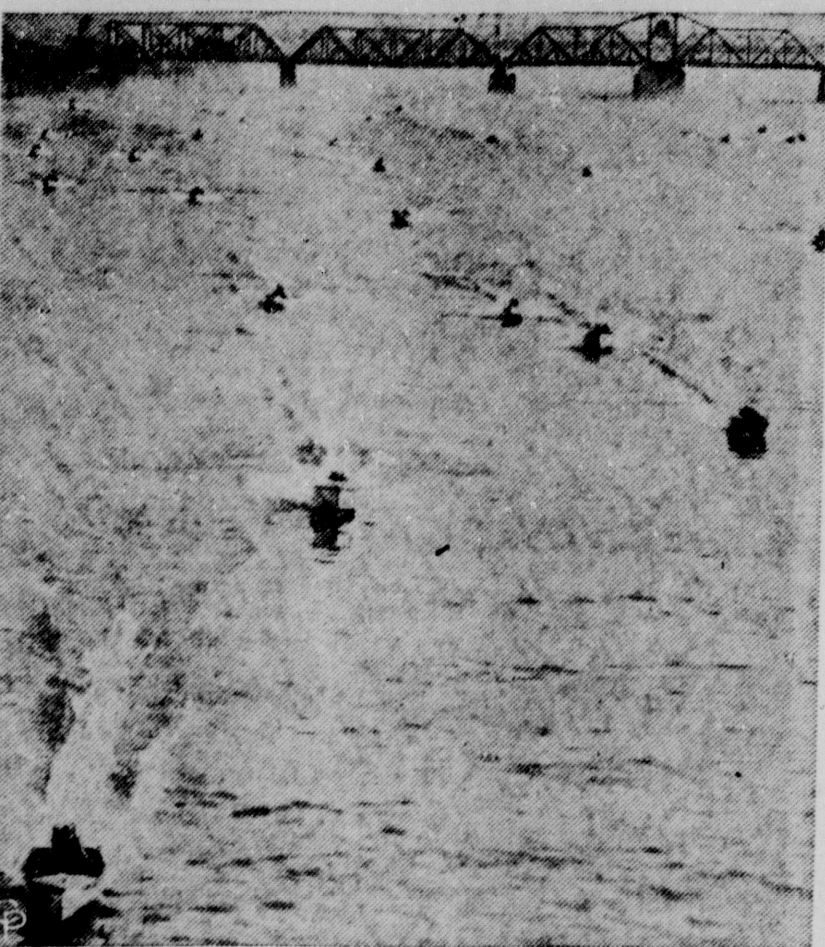

Rogers said that the members would serve without pay, but that he had requested that the legislature appropriate $2,600 for the 1947-48 biennium to cover the committee's expenses.

The industrial relations director said that upon completion of the board's work in recommending a standard for the hotel and restaurant industry other boards would continue with studies of wage scales in laundries, the dye industry, beauty culture and retail stores and office help.

ROGERS SAID that the provisions for minimum wage boards had been allowed to lapse with one exception. In 1941 a board was set up to prescribe minimum wages for the beauty culture industry.

Rogers pointed out that such boards have no power to establish rates, but merely recommend to the industrial relations head what they believe is a fair wage scale. He explained that if the salaries suggested by the board do not meet with his approval he may dissolve the board and appoint another one to restudy the problem.

BRITISH NOTE JAPANESE WOMEN WEARING SKIRTS

KURE, JAPAN, May 28—The high command in the British occupation zone of Japan noted today that skirts are replacing kimonos among Japanese women in the British zone.

Headquarters also had a partial explanation for the new mode of dress. The increasing popularity of the skirt over the kimono was "attributed to a minor extent to the kilted dress of the queen's own Cameron Highlanders." The kilted Highlanders spent a year of occupation duty in Japan. They were said to have created "great curiosity" among the Japanese.

WHEN IS A CREEK A RIVER?

Webster says a brook is smaller than a creek or river. A creek is larger than a brook and smaller than a river. A river is larger than a creek or a brook. Does that answer your question?

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

At least this is the story as I get it, and it fully explains the shennanigans you see in the news.

About a veto, the Republicans profess not to know. They apparently have no worthwhile information. But they do feel it will be more difficult for Mr. Truman to veto in the light of this new forthcoming statistical situation of the treasury. Most Republican leaders say privately they hope he does veto because they will fail of the necessary two-thirds majority in the senate only by a small margin, if they do fail, and then, in that case Mr. Truman and a few Democratic senators will have to take the public responsibility for blocking tax reduction — which would not aid their popularity with taxpayers.

My information all in all indicates Mr. Truman will sign the tax reduction and veto the labor union reform bill, but it is not direct or conclusive.

Opinions expressed by the writer in this column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Cincinnati Herald.

PICKERINGTON GIRL CROWNED DAIRY QUEEN

CLEVELAND, May 28 — All hail the queen, Miss Evelyn Priddy, 24-year-old beauty from Pickerington, O.

Miss Priddy was crowned Ohio's dairy queen yesterday at the Mid-America exposition in Cleveland as the climax of the exposition's agricultural day.

The new queen received a $100 cash prize and a large bouquet of roses besides the honor. She will officially represent the Ohio dairy industry in various cities during June, which is agricultural month.

Miss Priddy was chosen over five other contestants.

Republican congressman Clarence J. Brown, Blanchester, and Albert J. Browning, vice-president of the Ford Motor company, will be principal speakers tomorrow at gatherings in Cleveland in connection with the exposition.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Success With Flower and Vegetable Seedlings

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

THIS has been a backward spring in many areas, therefore, more than the average number of annual flower and vegetable seedlings must still be set out. For success with them, certain practices should be observed.

Plants which have grown in pots or "plant bands" can be transplanted into the garden with almost no disturbance of their roots, thus with slight if any interruption of growth or signs of wilting. When plants are to be transplanted from a flat, however, they will require extra careful handling.

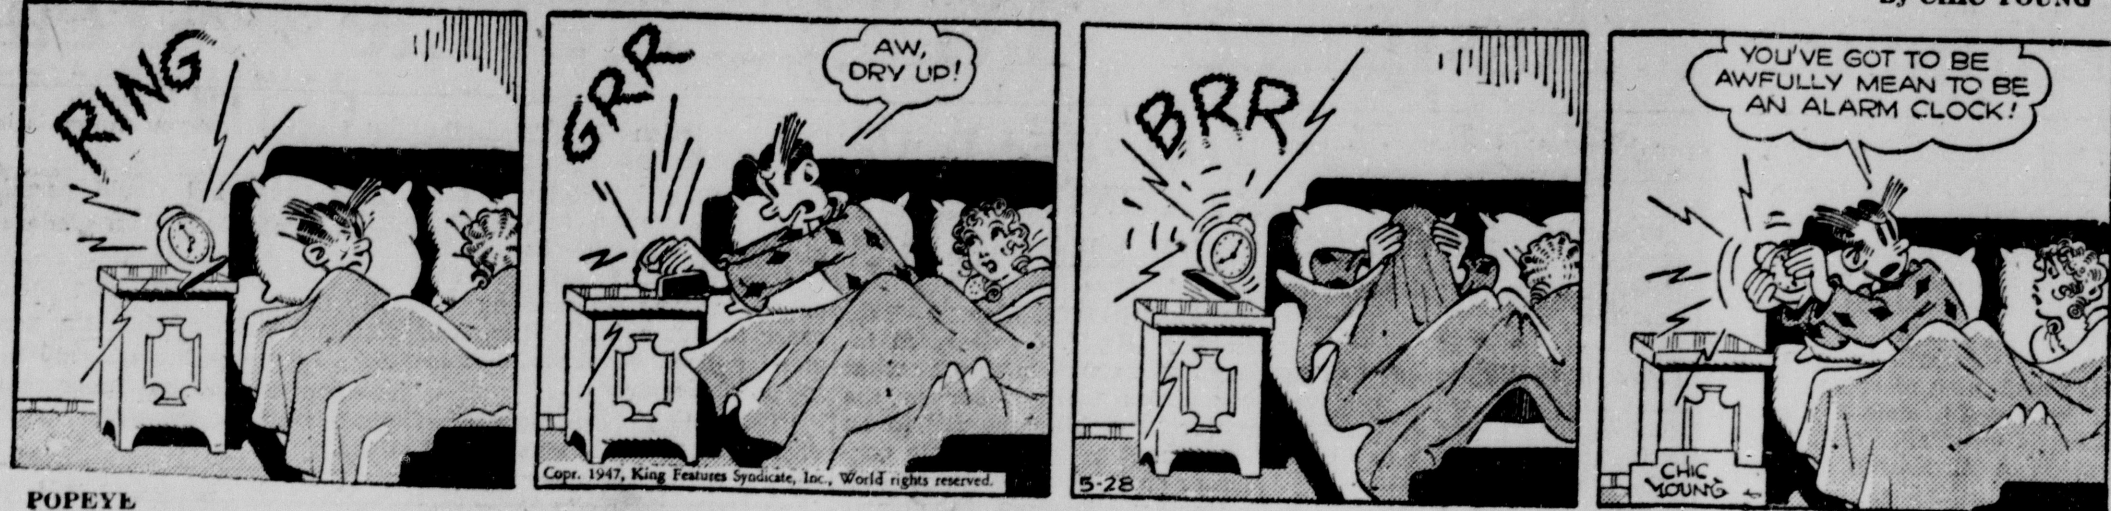

One important factor for success in transplanting is not to allow the roots of the seedlings to dry out. Water the flats several hours before the seedlings are to be lifted so that the moist soil will more readily cling to the roots.

When possible transplant on a cool, cloudy day or in the evening.

Give the seedlings protection from sun and wind for several days after moving them. Such protection is important since the root systems are often disturbed or damaged by transplanting and the plant's absorption of water is thus curtailed. Shielding seedlings from sun and drying winds reduces evaporation from the foliage and gives the plants a better chance to recuperate.

The accompanying Garden-Graph contrasts the strength of a protected seedling with the weakness of an unprotected one. Strawberry boxes, flower pots, or newspapers held in place by stones, can be used to shield transplanted seedlings.

If a close friend gives a party and you are not invited, do not harbor resentment. There probably is a very good reason for the omission, so give your friend the benefit of the doubt.
Today's Horoscope
If you are celebrating a birthday anniversary today, you are ambitious, self-satisfied and determined, sometimes stubborn. You like social life, especially in a circle above your own, and can readily adapt yourself to it. Your home is very dear to you, and you constantly make sacrifices and spare no expense to make it better and happier. Doubtful influences still are rife, similar to those of yesterday. Damage and unreasonable demands are shown. Progress will be registered and financial position be greatly improved in your next year, possibly through a legacy, but guard against a nervous breakdown. Abundant rest is advocated. A child born today will be financially fortunate, ambitious, industrious, painstaking, orderly, methodical and very clever, but a threat exists of nerve troubles through overwork.

BILL HELD UP BY CONTROVERSY ON FARM LABOR

WASHINGTON, May 28—Rep. Hartley (R) N. J., declared today that a controversy over what constitutes farm labor is the major "stumbling block" to an agreement by house senate conferees on a labor regulation bill. Hartley, chairman of the house labor committee and chief of house conferees, said the conference group should reach a full agreement on the final form of week instead of Friday, because of Decoration Day.

Mark List, 6, who underwent a tonsillectomy Tuesday in Berger hospital, was removed Wednesday to his home, Route 1, Circleville.

the legislation by Thursday afternoon.

He explained that house conferees had agreed to drop the ban on industry-wide bargaining and permission to employers to obtain court injunctions "in order to get a bill" which will stand a good chance of becoming law. He added:

"There has been no formal vote on these questions as yet, but I am telling you that this is how it will be."

The house bill would permit employers to obtain federal court injunctions to stop secondary union boycotts and jurisdictional strikes, while the senate measure authorizes only the reorganized national labor relations board to get such injunctions.

'WHITE HOUSE PRESSURE' PUT ON FILMS

City Will Pause For Memorial Day Friday

Memorial Day will be widely observed Friday in the Circleville area.

City, county, state and federal offices, along with the library, state liquor store, and most stores, factories, shops and offices will remain closed all day.

Service at the postoffice will be curtailed, with no deliveries except special delivery letters, and the stamp, postal savings and registry windows will remain closed. The pickups of mail will be on holiday schedule.

WHILE MANY residents will spend most of the holiday in activities aimed as a tribute to the nation's war dead, many others will enjoy holiday motor trips, sports, and recreation.

An outstanding highlight of Memorial Day will be the parade from downtown Circleville to Forest cemetery.

The procession will form

promptly at 9 a. m. at Memorial hall and will proceed on Court street to the cemetery. Led by a uniformed police escort the parade will comprise the colors and guard, rifle squad, the Circleville high school band, marching war veterans and auxiliaries, veterans in automobiles, members of other patriotic organizations in cars, and Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

OFFICERS of the day will be: Fred H. Boggs, American Legion commander; Virgil Timmons, Veterans of Foreign Wars commander; and Edward C. Hutchinson, Disabled American Veterans commander.

Parade marshals will be D. A. Yates, Ed Keys and Fred Donnelly. Larry Agin will captain the rifle squad. Buglers will be Billy Ebert and Clarence Willoughby.

The committee which will direct the decoration of veterans' graves is composed of Mack D. Parrett, chairman; Fred Boggs, E. C. Ebert, Fred Donnelly, James Fouch, Jack Chester and Jack Hatz. The public address system will be under supervision of Emanuel Hundley.

MEMORIAL services will be held at the soldiers' monument in Forest cemetery. Chief Carpenter's Mate R. B. Eddy, U. S. Navy, will be the speaker.

In event of rain the memorial services will be held in Memorial hall at 10 a. m.

Graves of war heroes in all of the cemeteries in the Circleville area are scheduled to be decorated Memorial Day and special services will be held in several cemeteries.

BUSINESS and industry will come to a virtual standstill throughout the district in memorial services.

Michigan Youth Not Upset By Killing Of Four Young Friends

LAPEER, MICH., May 28—Sixteen-year-old Oliver Terpening, still insisting he killed four young friends to satisfy an urge to "watch somebody die," will appear in probate court in Lapeer today on a waiver of juvenile jurisdiction.

The youth remained stolid under questioning by state police commissioner Donald S. Leonard. He expressed no concern over his shooting four of the children of William S. Smith; Barbara, 16, Stanley, 14, Gladys, 13, and Janet, 2.

Terpening confessed that he fired a .22-calibre bullet into Stanley's head and, though disappointed at the sensation he experienced in the murder, sent fatal bullets into the boy's sisters, "so they couldn't tell anyone."

THE BOY was whisked back across the Michigan-Ohio line from the scene of his arrest, near Toledo, yesterday, and taken to Lansing on a 70-mile-an-hour police cruiser which obviously thrilled him.

Leonard and other law officials expressed amazement at young Oliver's inability to explain his act. They observed that he apparently has not yet realized its enormity.

Dr. Le Moyne Snyder, medical expert of the Michigan state police, examined the youth (Continued on Page Two)

26 'MONSTERS OF MAUTHAUSEN' DIE ON GALLOWS

LANDSBERG, Germany, May 28—Twenty-six additional "monsters of Mauthausen" were hanged today on the black-curtained gallows of Landsberg prison.

Twenty-two other guards, foremen and torture experts at the infamous Nazi concentration camp were hanged by American GI's yesterday.

A 49th condemned man scheduled to die today was granted a temporary stay of execution by Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, commander of the American occupation zone.

The hangings, carried out on two scaffolds, required three hours and 29 minutes.

The executions, performed in the courtyard of the prison where Adolf Hitler was once lodged, were the largest in the history of the Allies war crimes prosecution.

The 49 were convicted May 11, 1946, for the murder of hundreds of thousands in the notorious camp outside Linz, Austria, including a group of American OSS officers captured in Slovakia.

Speaker Urges Manager For C of C At Meeting

Recommendation that the Circleville Chamber of Commerce employ a full-time manager was made by R. Douglas Pinkerton, manager of the Chillicothe Chamber of Commerce, who was the principal speaker at a meeting held Tuesday night following a dinner in the Betz restaurant.

Thirty-two members of the Circleville organization were in attendance and it was decided to present the recommendation at a meeting of the board of directors set for next Tuesday noon in the Betz restaurant. Mr. Pinkerton gave an interesting talk relative to his managerial duties at Chillicothe.

John Magill, president of the Circleville group, presided at the meeting.

MR. PINKERTON told of the advantages to a community of an active and progressive Chamber of Commerce. He also went into some detail as to the working plan of his organization in Chillicothe and how they are instilling interest in civic affairs not only to Chamber of Commerce members but also to the general public.

Mr. Pinkerton brought out particularly the matter of what they in Chillicothe are calling the approaching "B" day—or "Buyers Day"—and what the merchants and business people there are planning to do about it.

He warned those present that times are changing fast from a "sellers" to a "buyers" market and that steps should be taken at once by all business people to re-appraise their relationship with the buying public and also their own personnel so as to be better able to cope with this coming new era.

DURING the discussion which followed Mr. Pinkerton's address the members decided that the Circleville Chamber of Commerce will send a delegation to the city council meeting next Tuesday night to request action in the Chamber of Commerce request for installation of water

PRESIDENT MAY GO TO CAPITAL; MOTHER BETTER

GRANDVIEW, Mo., May 28—President Truman probably will return to Washington within a day or two because of his mother's remarkable recovery from her critical illness.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said this morning:

"If there is no setback today, the President may now safely consider an early return to Washington."

It is possible the President may be able to return to the nation's capital by plane tomorrow morning.

Parrett, representing the Chamber, asked the council at its May 20 meeting for free installation of water and sewer lines to serve the lots being sold to war veterans but council took no action. A majority of the council members indicated the city could not make such installation free of charge.

It was also decided to mail out within the next week or 10 days questionnaires to store patrons to determine the public's wishes regarding the opening and closing time for Circleville stores and whether the patrons desire the Wednesday afternoon closing to continue or perhaps be changed to Tuesday afternoon.

SOUTHERN COAL OPERATORS OPEN TALKS WITH UMW

WASHINGTON, May 28—Southern coal producers began separate bargaining conferences today with the United Mine Workers union looking toward a contract to replace the government-union agreement June 30.

Although contract talks between the UMW and northern and western mine owners have been under way for approximately two weeks, the southern producers declined to participate. They insisted upon a separate negotiating session.

UMW Vice President John O'Leary headed the miners' delegation which opened discussions this morning with southern operators representing approximately 25 percent of the nation's annual bituminous coal output.

ESCAPEES STAGE CRIME SPREE; TWO CAPTURED

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28—Three of six youthful convicts who escaped from the Ohio state reformatory Monday terrorized a number of Indiana residents and brought about a huge man-hunt today.

Two of the refugees from the prison at Mansfield, O., were recaptured as police followed a trail of kidnappings and burglaries for which they were responsible.

Those recaptured are William Lucas, 16, Cincinnati, and Gailand Briscoe, 20, Hamilton. The two and James Westlake, 19, Newark, left their three companions in northern Indiana and embarked upon a wild series of crimes in southeastern Indiana and in Indianapolis.

Westlake is believed to have been responsible for the kidnapping of Ernest Lanning, 40, near Nulturn, five miles south of Connersville, at two o'clock this morning.

UN-AMERICAN GROUP CHARGES REDS HELPED

House Committee Urges New Action To Get Facts On 'Dangerous Situation'

WASHINGTON, May 28—The house un-American activities committee today approved a report charging that flagrant Communist propaganda films were produced in Hollywood "as a result of White House pressure."

THE REPORT asserted: 1. Scores of Communist screen writers have infiltrated into motion picture studios and that the screen writers guild is, "according to competent witnesses under the complete domination of the Communist party."

2. White House pressure was responsible for a number of the most violently pro-Communist films.

3. Communist screen writers, directors and producers have employed subtle techniques glorifying the Communist system and degrading the American system of government and American institutions.

4. That the national labor relations board has given great aid to the Communists in their efforts to infiltrate and control the motion picture industry.

5. That until recently, there has been no concerted effort on the part of studio heads to remove the Communists from the industry and that they have been permitted to gain influence and power during the last eight years.

6. At the present time, there is a rebellion within the industry on the part of a number of top actors, directors and producers, who are refusing to play, direct or produce pictures which were written by a well-known Communist or in which well-known Communist actors have been given a role.

7. That the Communists have succeeded in preventing production of certain American pictures which sought to glorify America and the American system.

THE reference to the White House was made in the series of seven findings. The report merely said that the propaganda films were the result of "White House pressure." The report did not amplify this assertion nor did it specify during whose administration the "pressure" was exerted.

FEDERAL CURBS ON NEW HOMES LIFTED JUNE 1

WASHINGTON, May 28—Housing Expediter Frank R. Creedon announced today that beginning June 1 federal permits no longer will be required for persons wishing to build homes for themselves or for veterans.

On the same date, the limit on the number of bathroom fixtures to be installed in a new house will be removed and the 1,500 square foot limitation on homes will be expanded to 2,000 square feet.

Creedon said that persons who already have obtained federal permits may adopt the more liberal provisions.

The expediter emphasized, however, that remaining controls will be continued "until conditions permit further relaxation or unless congress directs their removal before then."

Creedon explained that the permit system is being discontinued in order to "simplify the few remaining restrictions."

100 MILLION CROP LOSS IN OHIO FORECAST

Rain Prevents Farmers From Planting; More Showers Predicted Here

By International News Service Ohio was threatened today with severe crop losses as the result of the wettest three-month Spring period in the history of the state.

With an estimated 100 million dollars' worth of crops gone by the board so far, further losses were anticipated as the weather failed to show a trend toward a dry cycle.

Rain fell over most of the state again yesterday and more showers were predicted through tonight and tomorrow. Since early Spring, forecasters said, the rain has been falling at such close intervals that much farm land has been unable to dry sufficiently for plowing and planting.

Strip Mine Bill Boost To Herbert

COLUMBUS, O., May 28—Governor Herbert's legislative stock went up today with passage by the house of a bill to expedite strip mining of coal.

The bill appeared a dead issue until Herbert got behind it last week. Until then it was not even sure of committee recommendation. But it was passed by the house yesterday by a smashing 88-34 vote.

Lending further prestige to Herbert's legislative victory was the report that Congressman-at-Large George Bender had urged the 18 Cleveland members to vote against the bill.

But the Cleveland delegation had dinner with Herbert the night before last—and only two of the 18 cast ballots against the bill.

The bill was termed "fair and temperate" by its principal author, Rep. Ray White (D-Holmes), who said it was patterned both after the Pennsylvania law and the findings of the Ohio strip mine study commission.

THREATS MADE AS BROTHERS DIG MOTHER'S GRAVE

CLEVELAND, May 28—Union and Lake View cemetery officials decried today the threats made by a picket as three brothers, one a minister, buried their mother yesterday in a grave they dug themselves.

Martin E. Vanderwerf, representative of the AFL-Arborists and Landscapers union, termed the picket interference "one of those things you wish hadn't happened."

According to an affidavit sworn by Dr. Laurence Blackburn, 49, pastor of St. Anne's Episcopal church in Lowell, Mass., one of the striking unionists came up to the grave site while the burial was in progress and threatened that "you're liable not to get out of here if you go on with this."

Dr. Blackburn was accompanied by his brothers, Wallace M. Blackburn, 36, Detroit, and Harold Blackburn, 42, Framingham, Mass. They had received permission from Lake View officials to dig a grave to bury their mother, Mrs. Ora Estella Blackburn, 72, of suburban Berea.

Cemetery officials reported that the incident was "very exceptional and that probably no similar situations will occur" before the strike is settled. The union is seeking a 10-cents hourly wage increase. The cemetery has offered four cents.

Bodies have been placed in a crypt at the cemetery during the six-week-old strike. A total of 118 caskets already has piled up in the vault, the cemetery reported.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Klerman

The Soviet radio is to accept advertising. Up until now when a Moscow announcer praised L. S. MFT he meant Lenin, Stalin, Molotov, Fedorenko, Timoshenko.

But soon the Soviet air will be filled with sponsored programs like "It pays to be arrogant," "Can you stop this?" and "We, the politburo!"

The sponsored quiz will be popular—the Soviet variation of "take it. Or leave it" will be "take it!" And "information please" will come out "in formation please!"

On the thrill side there will be programs like "this is your ogpu" and "the court of missing pairs" direct from Siberia.

No time will be sold for political broadcasts. As in the past, all political parties will be given free time on the air whenever it wants it.

But I still can't figure a huckster in an astrakhan hat or how you can Hooper-rate a program no one would dare admit he missed.

held, later said that the reference to White House "pressure" referred to efforts to have Jack Warner of Warner Brothers make "Mission to Moscow" and the testimony of Robert Taylor that his Navy enlistment was postponed in order to make "Song of Russia".

The committee member said that pressure on Taylor was exerted by Lowell Mellett, one-time administrative assistant to President Roosevelt.

Meantime, Rep. Thomas (R) N. J., committee chairman, said that 30 subpoenas will be issued on the west coast to unidentified witnesses to insure their presence at public hearings in Washington on Communism in Hollywood.

Thomas said he has sent instructions to Rep. Nixon (R) Calif., who is now on the coast, to confer with the U. S. district attorney concerning issuance of the subpoenas.

THE FULL COMMITTEE APPROVED THREE SUBCOMMITTEE RECOMMENDATIONS.

They are:

1. That the investigation of Communism in Hollywood be intensified and that a public hearing be held "at the earliest possible date" to give the American people the full facts and information on this dangerous situation.

2. That the Communist actors, writers, directors and producers be subpoenaed to appear in Washington and be confronted in public sessions with testimony and evidence against them.

3. That an investigation be instituted to determine the responsibility and extent of the influence and interference on the part of government agencies or officials in the production of "flagrant Communist propaganda films."

The report said that the subcommittee was furnished with a complete list of all the pictures which have been produced in Hollywood in the last eight years which contained Communist propaganda.

In conclusion, the report said: "In the opinion of the subcommittee, there is no question as to the serious inroads that the Communists have made in the motion picture industry, and it presents a problem which can only be corrected by complete exposure on the part of the committee and prompt action by the studio heads."

RUSSIA HAVING TROUBLE WITH FIVE YEAR PLAN

More Than Half Of Ministries Behind Schedule In Recovery Program

By KINGSBURY SMITH
European General Manager, International News Service
NEW YORK, May 26 — Russia today is having a difficult time trying to maintain the schedule of the current five-year plan, the greatest reconstruction program in the nation's history.

Sixteen out of thirty government ministries were behind schedule during the first quarter of this year according to what little information on the plan is available to foreign observers in Moscow.

Indications are that the plan has fallen behind schedule in respect to machine tools, agricultural machinery, transportation, housing and some branches of consumer goods.

On the other hand, it is believed to be up to or slightly ahead of schedule in respect to coal, steel and pig iron.

COAL PRODUCTION has now almost reached the pre-war level, with 165 million tons produced last year. Steel production this year should be well over 15 million tons, while more than ten million tons of pig iron are expected to be produced in 1947.

Soviet agricultural plans call for the planting of an additional 22½ million acres of land this year. Most of this new planting will be devoted to grain, which is to be increased by 15,600,000 acres. It is also planned to increase the grain acreage by another fifteen million acres in 1948.

PRIORITY objectives of the current five-year plan are officially stated to be as follows:

- 1—Soviet economy must be reconstructed entirely with chief emphasis on railway transportation and industry;
- 2—The level of overall industrial production in 1950 must exceed that of 1940 by 50 per cent.
- 3—The material welfare of the Soviet people must be advanced and by 1950 there must be an "abundance of the basic objects of consumption";
- 4—Soviet science must catch up with and surpass achievements of science abroad;
- 5—The tempo of investment in

TRAGEDY PILES ON TRAGEDY FOR ROSWELL WOMAN

DOVER, O., May 26—Tragedy piled on tragedy today for Mrs. Ida Martinelli, 57, of route 1, Roswell.

Her husband, A. F. Martinelli, the national economy must be speeded up;

6—Soviet armed forces must be provided with the most modern weapons.

The principal conclusion drawn by diplomatic observers in Moscow from a study of Soviet economic policies and plans as indicated in the five-year plan is that although the USSR will increase its economic potential very greatly in the coming year, the Russian people will continue to have a low standard of living until there is a basic change in Soviet policy.

RIDER WARNS VACATIONERS TO PRACTICE CARE

Conservation Commissioner Says Ohio Lakes Can Be Dangerous

Conservation Commissioner H. A. Rider today issued his annual warning to those who are looking forward to Summer vacations and week end outings on the waters of lakes and streams. "Water in drinking glass, a bathtub or a picturesque brook, is indeed a harmless thing," Rider explains, "but when millions of gallons get together in a river or lake it becomes a challenge to all safety precautions and common sense."

"Most of our Ohio lakes," Rider said, "are used by thousands of vacation loving people annually because they are fairly well scattered over the state at a convenient distance from almost anywhere and they're popular too because they are outstandingly picturesque and usually sprinkled with islands. But there is one disadvantage and that is that they, like most inland bodies of water, are shallow and shallow lakes get rough in a very few minutes with the slightest rising of the wind."

THE PERCENTAGE of casualties from boating is rather small considering the total number of people using the water for boating but is large when we consider that water accidents are avoidable through the appliance of common sense.

Too many people throw all caution and care to the four winds while engaged in the seemingly harmless water sports and thereby bring misery and grief upon their families and friends through carelessness.

A few simple rules are: 1. Don't overload rowboats; the average load for almost all such boats is four people. 2. Provide a life preserver for each passenger; a slightly inflated inner tube is an excellent life saver. 3. Head for the shore or nearest island if sky indicates rain or wind. 4. If a passenger tumbles overboard, mark the spot immediately by ramming a fishing pole or boat oar into the lake bottom and then toss out boat anchor to stop boat. 5. Leave the bottles on shore; it is said that 90 per cent of the drownings are caused by carelessness resulting from drinking.

Vacations and fishing trips are fun but can be enjoyed most by those who use precautions against possible disaster, Rider stated.

BABY BOY, 1, WITNESS FOR COLORED OLEO

COLUMBUS, O., May 28 — A year-old boy, dressed in butterfly-yellow rompers, stole the show in support of a senate-approved bill to legalize the manufacture and sale of colored oleomargarine in Ohio.

The star witness was Steve South, Columbus, who was presented to the house committee on organization of state government by Mrs. George South, his mother.

"This," Mrs. South said dramatically as she plunked Steve on the conference table, "is the reason I don't have time to color margarine."

Steve was a good advertisement for oleo's nutritional properties, it appeared, and he seemed to take his testimonial duties seriously.

He waved gravely to Committee Chairman George Kirkpatrick (R-Knox) at the other end of the table, blinked somewhat irritably at flashing camera bulbs, then added his own testimony.

"Wuh, wuh," he solemnly said.

NATIONAL FORESTS HELP
NEW YORK — The National Forests include 73 million acres capable of growing commercial timber crops, says the annual report of the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. They contain one-third of the national saw-timber stand. They are being managed for continuous timber production. In recent years they have supplied about 10 per cent of the nation's yearly lumber cut. With careful management of their timber resources, the National Forests can help to cushion the shock of private timber exhaustion in many areas, and save many mill operations from shut-down. Eventually their total sustained-yield output of timber can be more than double, says the report.

OLD TUNNEL IN CITY STIRS UP AGED LEGENDS

Mrs. Howard Moore Denies Any Knowledge Of Use Of Home For Slaves

Whether the old Moore home located at 304 South Court street was used 90 years ago as a "station" on a secret underground route through which runaway Negro slaves were surreptitiously whisked to freedom was a moot question Wednesday.

What appears to be the opening of a very old tunnel in the basement of the Moore home—stead which is now believed to be more than 125 years old. The house has been occupied by five generations of the Moore family. The present occupant is Mrs. Lillian Moore, widow of Howard B. Moore who died 21 years ago.

"I have no way of knowing just what this supposed tunnel may have been used for," Mrs. Moore said. "I know that the basement hole seems to be a tunnel opening, and I know that my husband spoke of the tunnel, but I also know that he never mentioned of knowing that it ever was used as a slave passage."

MORE THAN 10 years ago an article appeared in a Cincinnati newspaper concerning the presumed tunnel, and a similar article appeared in Monday's issue of a Columbus paper, Mrs. Moore said, and after each such publication she received many telephone and personal calls by curious persons seeking more information.

"I just don't know any more about it," she asserted. It is a matter of authenticated history, of course, that a network of underground tunnels was made use of during the hey-day of abolition preceding the Civil War to aid Negro slaves who fled northward from southern slave states.

But there appeared to be not one iota of evidence Wednesday that the supposed tunnel entering into the basement of the old Moore home was one of the "stations".

LEGEND IN Cincinnati says that a tunnel extends from the Moore home a distance of several blocks to the east edge of town and ends at Mound and Clinton streets near where a grocery store now stands.

But this is only legend despite the fact that Mrs. Moore said she remembered that when the Lutheran church was erected on Mound street a short distance east of the Moore home the men who dug the church foundation discovered what appeared to be a brick-walled tunnel running eastward.

City Councilman William M. Reid, who prides himself on being a Cincinnati and Pickaway county historian, declared flatly that the idea of the Moore home having long ago been a "station" on the slave underground railway is "pure bosh."

Reid—who celebrated his 79th birthday on Monday—said that many years ago there was a swamp known as "Lake Darling" in the area of the location of the Moore home at the southeast corner of South Court and Mound streets.

MANY YEARS ago, Reid said, a large tunnel was constructed, mostly of heavy stone blocks, to serve as a drainage sewer for the swamp and "Lake Darling".

He said that drainage artery extended eastward, then veered northward, and emptied into Hargus creek at the Lancaster pike. He further asserted that at one time he owned property very near to the Moore home and that the aperture in the basement of the Moore home, now presumed to be a tunnel opening, was really used years ago as a "coal dump".

"Although legend has it that this house was erected in 1810 by William Moore, my husband's grandfather," declared Mrs. Moore, "I do not know whether that is correct." She said her husband's forefathers came to Ohio from the southern states. She added that she knew of none who were abolitionists.

As to the report that Colonel Samuel Ashbury Moore, born in the house the same year it was built, in later years becoming an "ardent abolitionist," Mrs.

Moore declared she had no means of knowing whether that is truth or fiction.

A search of old and musty records in the office of County Engineer Henry T. McCrady and County Recorder Florence Campbell disclosed no information concerning a tunnel which is presumed to have led from South Court and Mound streets to Mound and Clinton streets.

Mrs. Moore asserted that if there really was such a tunnel she has "no idea who might have built it."

Good way to keep a Honey Happy

THINK back to the days when your Buick stood proud, shiny and new at your door. A touch of your toe and that two tons of car romped away gentle as a breeze — and just as obediently glided to a soft, sure stop.

That's the kind of driving that's right in the heart and soul of Buicks. It's there for you to have for years and years — especially when your car gets the kind of care such a honey should have.

That doesn't mean just filling her up and seeing that the oil doesn't get low. Nor a periodic lube job done with "one-kind-for-all" lubricants. It means competent care by men familiar with every part of a Buick — by men who know Buicks best and have an interest in seeing that you get the greatest satisfaction from yours.

Every detail of our service is aimed at this goal. The men are specialists on Buicks. They work with Buick-designed tools. They're backed up by a parts department stocked with Buick-engineered parts that are just made for Buick cars.

So you see the difference between ordinary service and Buick car care. It's the skilful, considerate care that keeps your Buick always a Buick. It's the kind of care which proves that next to you, we like your Buick best.

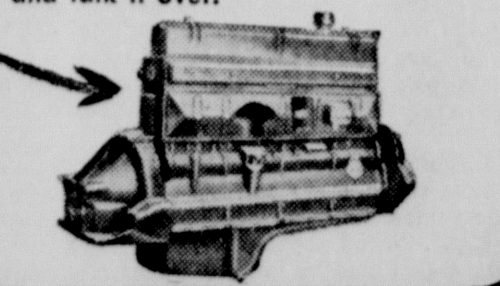

TIME TO REPOWER?

Suppose your Buick is crowding the big figures in high mileage. Suppose you don't want to wait for that new one. Here's a happy answer.

LOST CHILDREN

ONE OF the most human things about little boys and girls is their tendency to wander away from home when spring comes, thereby often getting lost and causing their parents and friends much needless trouble. An observer suggests what may be at least a partial remedy. He finds some kind of attractive adornment which the other youngsters haven't got, and which they are therefore proud to wear, and pins it on so conspicuously that it isn't likely to come off. Thus the child is more easily traced and identified.

Less conspicuous but quite useful is a tag with name and address fastened on the back of the clothing where it cannot easily be dislodged. Teaching the small fry to state their name, father's name and address, when asked, is also a good idea.

Most important of all is to teach them that the policeman is their friend.

NATIONAL SURPLUS WEEK

QUIT HOLDING goods for high profits, or even low profits. Let everyone get together in a goods-moving National Surplus Week. So urges the Robert B. Cady Co., a New York advertising firm, in an advertisement "published as a public service." This asks manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers to inventory all undesirable, discontinued or over-priced stock on hand, cut to its true value, whether that be 2 per cent less or 90 per cent, and put it on sale for a week. If anything remains unsold, give it to charity. Then start afresh with the manufacture of new goods.

This sweeping proposal captures the imagination. While there will always be some to hang back, those who try it might find that their loss was less than they had expected, and that they had gained in public good will.

EARLIEST PRINTED BOOK

THE DISCOVERY of a book printed before Johann Gutenberg's famous Bible, the earliest known printed book, is announced by Tass, the official Russian news agency. This would be exciting, but unfortunately is not true. The Tass story of the finding of a leaf of another Bible, with 36 lines to a page, while the better-known Bible has 42. This is no new discovery. Copies of the 36-line Bible are already known, and can be dated as having been printed in 1460. The 42-line Bible was printed somewhere between 1450 and 1456.

Evidently this statement is no more reliable than a good many others issued by Tass. Still, even if the 36-line Bible is the second printed book and not the first, it is rare enough to give the finder of any new specimen real cause for pride.

NEW YORK—Evening comes to New York in so many ways.
It comes wearily, tiredly to the suburbanite, and we see him strolling patiently into Grand Central station, evening paper under his arm and one eye on the terminal clock. It comes coolly and refreshingly to the society post-boy, who has been up perhaps two hours with an icepack on his head. It comes romantically and melodramatically to the artist, who lights his candles in bottles and opens his window to let the night noises of the city rush into his soul.
It comes frighteningly to the lonely ones. I sat last night in a little ham and egg joint in Lexington ave. and watched them. This is one of those places where there is a guy in the window frying eggs. The spectacle is an irresistible lure to the public, which stands and watches the thoughtfully, like sidewalk superintendents. At home, the wife putting together guinea hen under glass in the kitchen would get a tumble, but here the husband is enchanted. He stands in a sort of admiring coma; then suddenly he comes alive, glances furtively and guiltily around him and drifts off down the street.

Around 8 o'clock last night, though, they were not husbands and wives who were watching. They were the lonely ones. Their mooring is a hotel room, their companion is a movie house and their bedside friend during the dark morning hours is an alarm clock. They are the drifters, who never have fastened to anyone or anything over the years. They are not pretty, the women, or they would have trapped a man; they are not handsome or charming, the men, or they too would not be alone. They are dull, flat little people. Nice people, maybe, or nice people once who have been embittered and warped by the years.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 28—You may have noticed in the news that the steam went out of the George-Byrd-Democratic move to put off the Republican tax reduction. The enthusiasm behind delay rather mysteriously eased down. Even Senator George, author of the proposed delay, conceded to a reporter in advance of the vote that he expected to be defeated.

This may seem strange to you because the Democrats had their best issue of the season on this matter. For the first time they had the Democratic party together in one fold, the George and Byrds aligned with Mr. Truman and his treasury secretary. They could not muster that thorough unanimity even on the tax reduction proposal itself. Furthermore the Democrats had a good argument. They wanted delay until they could see how much the Republicans cut the Truman budget, claiming there should be no tax reduction until the figures on economies show justification.

The inside explanation of how the steam went down I hear is this:

Mr. Snyder and the treasury crowd got up some advance figures on expectations of June 15 income tax receipts. They thought such a survey would show a decline and put the Republicans in a deeper hole. They reasoned that if they, the Democrats, could keep the tax reduction bill a way from the White House until the second quarter tax receipts were announced, Mr. Truman could justify a veto.

Unfortunately their survey showed the opposite. The treasury actuaries are supposed to have found receipts will not only be unexpectedly up, but up beyond their latest budget estimates, thus affording more opportunity than was expected for tax reduction and debt retirement.

Certain top Republicans in congress found out about these figures and changed their strategy. It seems Messrs. Knudsen and Tabor, the house Republican fiscal directors, decided not to attempt to go through with their plan to hold the tax bill in conference after it passes the senate. You read of their plan in this spot last week. They thought that if they held the bill in conference after it passes the senate until the fiscal year closes June 30, the treasury figures would show full justification for their reduction bill, even though they had been unable to economize as much as they expected. Senator Taft was supposed to be willing.

But treasury estimators can get a fairly trustworthy line on such figures in advance. They know the state of business and individuals and can reckon at this late date (only about three weeks in advance of the second quarter payments and five weeks before the end of the fiscal year) fairly thoroughly as to what to expect.

When the Republicans heard about these figures as I say, they changed position. Taft decided to press for immediate action despite his loss of Byrd and George and the so-called conservative Democrats. They could see there was no need to wait. They might just as well push the thing right up to Mr. Truman any old time at their convenience.

DIET AND HEALTH

Limiting Weight Gains Helps Avoid Toxemia of Pregnancy

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PERHAPS the greatest danger to the expectant mother is the possibility that she will develop a condition known as the toxemia of pregnancy. In this disorder there is a marked increase in blood pressure; body tissues become waterlogged and swollen; there are vomiting, prostration and, sometimes convulsions, coma and death. Knowing the dangers of toxemia, doctors are always on guard against the condition, but in the past, unfortunately, they have not always been able to prevent its developing. We do not know its exact cause, but during recent years research has led to a belief that lack of proteins in the diet may have something to do with it.

Preventing Toxemia

More recently still, Dr. Ralph Luikart of Creighton University has done much to show ways in which toxemia may be prevented in the vast majority of cases if not entirely eliminated at all. His plan consisted chiefly in regulation of the diet so that each expectant mother under his care ate during her pregnancy relatively large amounts of protein while cutting down drastically on starches, sweets and other foods of high caloric content.

Limited Total Increase

In this way he limited the total increase in weight during pregnancy to 15 pounds, with the maximum gain in any month held to two pounds. All patients were held to this rule and each was impressed with the fact that the scale and not her appetite determined how much she should eat.

This, of course, meant careful planning of the diet. In good general hygiene including regularity of the bowels, ample rest and suitable exercise.

An effort also was made to be sure that the patient consumed enough proteins from such foods as meat and milk. Meat or fish was eaten once a day, and liver twice a week in those cases where there was no reason to limit its use. One or two eggs were included daily as well as two servings of cooked green vegetables. They had one of the citrus fruits or tomato juice for breakfast to provide vitamin C, and one serving of cooked fruit or canned fruit without heavy syrup later in the day.

Successful Weight Control

Successful weight control during pregnancy depends on the treatment during the first seven months. If the weight gain is not properly controlled during that time, a sudden large weight gain is likely to occur during the last two months, due to the retention of fluids in the tissues. If a patient gains more than a pound in two weeks, there should be a reduction not in the proteins and cooked vegetables, but in the amounts of such foods as ice cream, candy, pastries, cereals and potatoes.

One thousand women who followed this weight control program throughout their pregnancy, remained well and not one case of toxemia of pregnancy developed. Thus it would seem that a diet of this type does have value in preventing this serious disorder of pregnancy, the extra safety it gives being well worth the extra effort of both doctor and patient.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

RUFUS returned Diane's smile. "Seen Page lately?"

"Not for several days. I called her today—Rufus! Suddenly she was aware of something different in his manner. 'Rufus, you're going to tell me—'

"If she hasn't Page and I are going to be married sometime," he added.

Diane put out both her hands to his. "Grand, Rufus! Oh, I am very glad! I can take some of the credit for it, can't I? You met her at my wedding!"

Rufus laughed. "Yes, the credit's yours." For more reason than Diane knew, perhaps.

"I'm not surprised," Diane continued. "Page said something one day—"

But Rufus looked surprised.

"She did?"

"The way girls talk together! She said she was thinking of it! She saw his face cloud a little. 'She's had to think it pretty well out. It wasn't love at first sight with her. And she still has a fight ahead of her.'"

"You mean with her family?"

Rufus nodded. "It's postponed till after a trip they're taking. I was all for walking in on them and giving them the facts, but Page wants to handle it and she thought it was a little cruel to spoil their plans for this jaunt."

Diane wondered swiftly if he were thinking what she was. That Page was putting it off because she did not have the courage to face it out. Plans for a motor trip were not so very important!

"It isn't—?" She was going to say, "their affair." But she did not finish, realizing how empty the denial was. She wrinkled her brow, considering. She liked him so much that she hated having anyone look down on him! "Rufus, maybe if you told Page what you told me that day, told her family—"

Their drinks had come. Rufus took a full swallow of his, smiled over his glass. But his smile had no amusement in it.

"I'd be more acceptable as a son-in-law? At the cost of such compromise with myself, the position would be too dear won't it. The shake of his head was almost angry.

Diane remembered her anger when she had looked over the gathering at Mrs. Arden's table and seen them so entrenched behind their superiority of family.

"I'm certain, now, that Bill's family had to take an awful gulp to swallow me! And Dad and Paula. Dad's money didn't make any difference. Really, they don't think of money! And that's all I had back of me. I didn't see it that way at the time; if I had I'd have laughed at it. I'd have said it didn't make a darn bit of difference, not even if I were a Hindu girl—or like Topay, wasn't it, who 'just growed.' As long as Bill wanted me and I wanted him.

"There isn't anything more to say of that than I've told you," Rufus answered brusquely.

"Indeed there is," Diane asserted, the warmth in her voice partly her very real indignation at Page.

"I can tell you I hope you're awfully happy!"

"Thanks," Rufus said. He put a coin on the check, got to his feet, a little abruptly. "Come along, my ally, before I lose my job."

His hand under Diane's arm, he steered her before him through the maze of little tables.

"Diane!"

It was Mrs. Arden, Senior. Allitha Mathewson sat with her at a table in Diane's and Rufus' path.

"Oh, hello!" Diane returned. "Have you met Rufus Kent?"

Making it sound a privilege, for Rufus, cooless, his shirt-sleeves wrinkled where he'd rolled them up and down, his hair roughened, would not impress them favorably.

"I've heard Bill speak often of you, Mr. Kent," Mrs. Arden said, cordially. In an equally pleasant manner Allitha Mathewson acknowledged the introduction. But Diane saw the withdrawing in their eyes.

She said hastily: "I didn't know you were sitting here. When did you come in?"

Mrs. Arden answered first. "We tried to catch your eye."

Rufus, it SHOULD be that way!"

By a slight lift of his shoulders Rufus deprecated the fact that it wasn't.

"I thought," Diane went on, her fingers tracing the pattern in the paper dolly before her, "that what Bill and I were to each other would have nothing to do with anyone, outside. With Bill's family, or mine. That it would be just our two selves. Oh, no one interferes, it isn't that! But it's between us, something you can't give a name— Why, sometimes I feel a much married to that first Judge William Arden hanging in our living room as I am to Bill! To all of them, since his day!"

She lifted eyes bright with defiance, finished, furiously: "What if I never find the real Bill, for all of them?"

Now it was Rufus who put his hand out to cover hers. "You will, if you stick to it. I think you've fought the fight in you," she exclaimed.

Diane squeezed his hand before she drew hers away. "Rufus, you always say just the word I need to hear! And when I need to hear it! I was ready to—compromise! Now I won't!"

"Don't, and command me at any time," Rufus answered, lifting his glass to her.

She lifted her own. "Pledged in coffee cold!" Then she exclaimed: "Rufus! You said five minutes!"

He looked at his wrist, affected horror. "That's what happens when you let a blonde get you in tow."

"And we've been talking of me and my affairs, instead of you and Page!"

"There isn't anything more to say of that than I've told you," Rufus answered brusquely.

"Indeed there is," Diane asserted, the warmth in her voice partly her very real indignation at Page.

"I can tell you I hope you're awfully happy!"

"Thanks," Rufus said. He put a coin on the check, got to his feet, a little abruptly. "Come along, my ally, before I lose my job."

It was Mrs. Arden, Senior. Allitha Mathewson sat with her at a table in Diane's and Rufus' path.

"You were very much absorbed," Allitha Mathewson added.

"Yes, Rufus holding my hand," Diane thought swiftly, with some consternation. But she gave no sign of it. "Going home? My car's just around the corner. I'll drive you."

"We've a little more shopping. Thanks for thinking of it."

"Thanks, my dear," repeated Mrs. Arden.

"See you soon!" Diane flashed a smile at them, swung away airily. Outside the door Rufus turned to her, grinning a little. "The bank of the enemy!" He gave a slight jerk of his head toward the candy shop behind them.

Diane knew that he had seen the way they had looked, giving a different meaning to finding her and Rufus there, absorbed in each other. But he was ready to laugh at it, so she laughed. But when she had left Rufus and was walking toward her car a sudden dismay struck her, almost halted her step. They, Mrs. Arden and Allitha, were remembering, of course, what she had said of Rufus—"convincing as a lover."

"Oh, Rufus," she cried aloud, contritely. "I've hurt your cause, before your fight begins!"

Her bomb had been a pebble, she realized, thrown into a pool that was not accustomed to having pebbles thrown into it. Perhaps, for a long time she must see the ripples breaking over the smooth surface of it, even to its far edges!

When Diane read in the Post that Mr. and Mrs. Edward Winston and Miss Page Winston were going from the White Mountains to Nova Scotia, she put the newspaper down with a frown. Rufus deserved so much better than that.

August was passing in a succession of oppressively warm days and nights. Heat rose thick and acid from the pavements; grass plots yellowed; the leaves on the trees along the streets hung limp, yellowing and curling.

Every morning Bill said to Diane, with solicitude in his voice: "Take things easy today, darling. It's going to be hotter than yesterday."

She did not tell him that she never had felt more like doing things. She was ashamed for sometimes being irritated by his concern. It was sweet, it was sincere, she reminded herself. It was what she wanted, wasn't it?

Bill was bringing work home again. "A fellow using the Thorpe Wireframe Company for an infringement on some patents he holds," he explained to Diane. But a rest self-confidence in his manner made the preparation for this suit almost negligible; after a half hour's concentration on it he would push it aside and suggest that they drive down to the waterfront and find a breeze.

STARSSAY—

For Wednesday, May 28

A DAY of rather critical and conflicting situations is seen from major planetary configurations. There is definite promise of a combination of influential interest, brilliant ideas and bold adventures, with a coalition of forces, resources, plans and objectives, but false moves, half-baked ideas or tactics, blunders or trickiness might jeopardize all fair prospects. Erratic or impulsive moves may complicate and provoke anger and negative results. Give pause for reason and good judgment.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, while on the eve of a year of much activity and strenuous performance, in which the undivided support of those in high places whose funds, ideas and general resources are needful for sound development, might be swayed from such collaboration by underdevelopment, or impractical ideas or plans, even by misrepresentation or show of trickiness or deception.

Strange predicaments or character involvements, erratic or emotional impulses, might antagonize or forfeit influential interests. Rationalizing and intelligent management might turn the tide to conspicuous success. Principle, restraints and poise may avert injury and loss.

A child born on this day while possessed of constructive ideas with promising ingenuity and skill, also has erratic and strange urges, impulsive and emotional, to negative its major plans and objectives.

NEITHER SHOULD GET IT

WHEN THE cards are so distributed that both sides can make game in their best suit, neither side should do it. If that sounds paradoxical, just consider the value of sacrifice bids to cut down your losses. If you have bid to a game you can make, and the opponents then overcall with a game contract which they can make, are you going to let them get away with it? Wouldn't you rather go one level higher than your maximum safe contract and be set one? That will cost you less than their game would.

It proved that South did the best thing for his side. The opponents could have made their 4-Spades, with the loss of just one trick in hearts and two in diamonds, and not even these tricks could have been taken unless they were raked in before the lead was lost to East, as he could discard any losers in his hand by establishing clubs through a single ruff.

The 5-Hearts contract was set one trick, as the defenders took one in spades and two in clubs. That cost North-South 200 points,

MRS. HEISKELL brought out the interesting fact to "raise your child with old fashioned common sense, but flavor it with scientific data. Live not only for your child but also with your child". In conclusion, was the high light of her informative address, "if parents have any emotional conflicts over a problem, that must be solved first. There must be cooperation between parents or the child will respond unfavorably. Part of a child's security comes from achievement as he explores his ever-expanding world". She read an article "Part-time Baby" written by Janice A. McDonald.

BLUES HOLD ON TO LEAD; BIRDS WIN AND GAIN

By International News Service
Kansas City Blues continued to hold their own today in what is rapidly coming to be known as the American Association shuffle.

The New York Yankee farmhands, emulating the shutout propensities of their elders, clipped the St. Paul Apostles last night, 4 to 0, and dumped the Saints unceremoniously into the cellar with their twin city neighbor, Minneapolis.

The hot fight for second place between the Toledo Mud Hens and the defending champion Louisville Colonels saw the Mud Hens take a temporary advantage again today following their 6-to-5 defeat of Indianapolis.

Louisville, meanwhile, slipped back into third as the Columbus Red Birds set them down, 7 to 2, and climbed from seventh to sixth. Al Patterson tossed a seven-inning shutout for the Colonels as his mates capitalized on four Louisville errors and battered two pitchers for nine safeties.

In the other game last night, Marv Grissom scattered nine hits to keep Minneapolis from being the sole possessor of last place in the league standings. The Millers garnered only seven base hits, but their two-run innings were enough to outscore Milwaukee, 4 to 3.

TREATY TO WAIT
WASHINGTON, May 28 — Far eastern experts today foresaw no possibility of the calling of a conference to draft the Japanese peace treaty before late Fall or early Winter.

WAGE BOARDS IN OHIO TO BECOME ACTIVE AGAIN

Hotel And Restaurant Group Named By Industrial Relations Chief

COLUMBUS, O., May 28—The long dormant state minimum wage boards are expected to start functioning again within the next six weeks.

William J. Rogers, state industrial relations director, said today that the first board—covering the hotel and restaurant industry—lacked only two members. He stated that the complement of nine members should be filled by early July and that their report would be submitted to him within 60 days after their first meeting.

ROGERS NAMED the members who had already accepted the appointments. He noted that they were representatives of management, labor and the public.

They are D. M. Myers, general manager of the Hotel Alms in Cincinnati; George Geyer, of Geyer's restaurant, Xenia; Frank Wells, of Wells-Rexall drug store, Wooster; Jack A. Breidenbach of the Ohio Federation of Labor, Dayton; Lawrence N. Steinberg of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, Toledo, and Joseph H. Traylor of the Hotel Hollenden, Cleveland. The only public representative who has accepted is Alma Herbst, professor of economics at Ohio State University's school of commerce.

Rogers said that the members would serve without pay, but that he had requested that the legislature appropriate $2,600 for the 1947-48 biennium to cover the committee's expenses.

The industrial relations director said that upon completion of the board's work in recommending a standard for the hotel and restaurant industry other boards would continue with studies of wage scales in laundries, the dye industry, beauty culture and retail stores and office help.

ROGERS SAID that the provisions for minimum wage boards were established by the general assembly in 1933. Minimum wage rates were set for various industries during the next three years.

He stated that after 1936, however, the functioning of such boards had been allowed to lapse with one exception. In 1941 a board was set up to prescribe minimum wages for the beauty culture industry.

Rogers pointed out that such boards have no power to establish rates, but merely recommend to the industrial relations head what they believe is a fair wage scale. He explained that if the salaries suggested by the board do not meet with his approval he may dissolve the board and appoint another one to restudy the problem.

BRITISH NOTE JAPANESE WOMEN WEARING SKIRTS

KURE, JAPAN, May 28—The high command in the British occupation zone of Japan noted today that skirts are replacing kimonos among Japanese women in the British zone.

Headquarters also had a partial explanation for the new mode of dress. The increasing popularity of the skirt over the kimono was "attributed to a minor extent to the killed dress of the queen's own Cameron Highlanders." The killed Highlanders spent a year of occupation duty in Japan. They were said to have created "great curiosity" among the Japanese.

WHEN IS A CREEK A RIVER?

Webster says a brook is smaller than a creek or river. A creek is larger than a brook and smaller than a river. A river is larger than a creek or a brook. Does that answer your question?

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

At least this is the story as I get it, and it fully explains the shenanigans you see in the news.

About a veto, the Republicans profess not to know. They apparently have no worthwhile information. But they do feel it will be more difficult for Mr. Truman to veto in the light of this new forthcoming statistical situation of the treasury. Most Republican leaders say privately they hope he does veto because they will fail of the necessary two-thirds majority in the senate only by a small margin, if they do fail, and then, in that case Mr. Truman and a few Democratic senators will have to take the public responsibility for blocking tax reduction — which would not aid their popularity with taxpayers.

My information all in all indicates Mr. Truman will sign the tax reduction and veto the labor union reform bill, but it is not direct or conclusive.

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Cincinnati Herald.

PICKERINGTON GIRL CROWNED DAIRY QUEEN

CLEVELAND, May 28 — All hail the queen, Miss Evelyn Priddy, 24-year-old beauty from Pickerington, O.

Miss Priddy was crowned Ohio's dairy queen yesterday at the Mid-America exposition in Cleveland as the climax of the exposition's agricultural day.

The new queen received a $100 cash prize and a large bouquet of roses besides the honor. She will officially represent the Ohio dairy industry in various cities during June, which is agricultural month.

Miss Priddy was chosen over five other contestants.

Republican congressman Clarence J. Brown, Blanchester, and Albert J. Browning, vice-president of the Ford Motor company, will be principal speakers tomorrow at gatherings in Cleveland in connection with the exposition.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Success With Flower and Vegetable Seedlings

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

THIS has been a backward spring in many areas, therefore, more than the average number of annual flower and vegetable seedlings must still be set out. For success with them, certain practices should be observed.

Plants which have grown in pots or "plant bands" can be transplanted into the garden with almost no disturbance of their roots, thus with slight if any interruption of growth or signs of wilting. When plants are to be transplanted from a flat, however, they will require extra careful handling.

One important factor for success in transplanting is not to allow the roots of the seedlings to dry out. Water the flats several hours before the seedlings are to be lifted so that the moist soil will more readily cling

Hints on Etiquette
 If a close friend gives a party and you are not invited, do not harbor resentment. There probably is a very good reason for the omission, so give your friend the benefit of the doubt.

Today's Horoscope
 If you are celebrating a birthday anniversary today, you are ambitious, self-satisfied and determined, sometimes stubborn. You like social life, especially in a circle above your own, and can readily adapt yourself to it. Your home is very dear to you, and you constantly make sacrifices and spare no expense to make it better and happier. Doubtful influences still are rife, similar to those of yesterday. Damage and unreasonable demands are shown. Progress will be registered and financial position be greatly improved in your next year, possibly through a legacy, but guard against a nervous breakdown. Abundant rest is advocated. A child born today will be financially fortunate, ambitious, industrious, painstaking, orderly, methodical and very clever, but a threat exists of nerve troubles through overwork.

BILL HELD UP BY CONTROVERSY ON FARM LABOR

WASHINGTON, May 28—Rep. Hartley (R) N. J., declared today that a controversy over what constitutes farm labor is the major "stumbling block" to an agreement by house senate conferees on a labor regulation bill.

Hartley, chairman of the house labor committee and chief of house conferees, said the conference group should reach a full agreement on the final form of week instead of Friday, because of Decoration Day.

Mark List, 6, who underwent a tonsillectomy Tuesday in Berger hospital, was removed Wednesday to his home, Route 1, Circleville.
